

New York State EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

Knowledge > Skill > Opportunity

To help parents prepare for the transition to the Next Generation Learning Standards, the New York State Education Department collaborated with multiple partners, including parents, to develop a brochure that provides parents helpful information about the Next Generation Learning Standards. This resource includes a description of the role of standards in the instructional cycle, an FAQ about the standards, and links and resources to support classroom learning.

This is a free and shareable resource that can be distributed through email, linked on a web page, or printed and shared as part of a welcome packet or at a school function or event. Now would be a perfect time to share the resource, as parent conferences and open houses are scheduled!

Please visit the Next Generation Learning Standards web page for the parent resource, as well as many other resources that are available for the transition to the Next Generation Standards, which begin implementation in Fall, 2020.

Please contact the Office of Curriculum and Instruction at emscurric@nysed.gov if you have any questions.
